He was never brought to trial, and was liberated, as we have stated, on the 16th July on the representations of cortain British subjects. Mr. Belitski states that he was well treated in prison, all the officials having been very kind to him.

The Shih-pao tells the following story of how a tradesman was fooled by a geomancor when purchasing a site for his grave :- A certain Mr. Li is a well-to-do tradesman, having risen to his present position through his untiring thrift and industry. With his accumulated savings he has purchased houses and lands, and is spending his last years in the peaceful enjoyment of the fruits of his labours. Reflecting upon the near eventuality of shaking off this mortal coil, he is anxiously desirous of selection a snot where bis remains may rest in comfort and in harwith the invisible spirits. If you cherish any doubt of my words, you can satisfy yourself by consulting a geomancer." Feeling quite dubious of what he had heard, the old man engaged the services of a geomancer, and proceeded with him to inspect recommended. The geomancer confirmed the statements of the factor, by pronouncing the spot "ox eye," which means highly auspicious. Accordingly the old man purchased the site for the sum of 500 tacle, for which he received a away the shrubs, etc. Just as these operations were finished, a Mr. Hauan came to the old man's door, and in terms loud and threatening, denounced him for having illegally bought another men's property, and in isted upon hauling him to Court. Poor Mr. Li, in atter confusion, began to stammer out in explanation of the circumstances of his purchase with the hope of farmer who had recommended him to buy the action. But this crafty farmer had flown, leaving no clue to his whoreabouts, and poor Mr. Li had to give up the "dragon-site" where his mortal remains were expected to abide. It soon transpired that this was a conspiracy between farmer and the geomancor to swindle old Li and that Hauan was the lawful owner of the

THE PARNELL COMMISSION. LONDON, 16th July. The withdrawal of the Parnellite counsel today from the special commission by order of their clients, who have abandoned the case against the Times, creates a profound sensation. The action of the Irish leaders is a determined protest against the exclusion of the books of Secretary Houston of the Loyal and Patriotic League, from which they proposed to prove the graesome sight. . The confessions of Archdeacon Farrar are not less tragic than the silence of Dean Maitland. Once on a time it appears that Archdeacon Larrar was invited to take a hand at whiet for penny points—and he assented. It was a sharp lesson, and he has profited by it to an extent which cannot be estimated by the number of pennies lost and paid over. Never again will he commit a similar indiscretion. Such was the painful admission and such was the prudent resolution which Archdescon Farrar made public at the debate on gambling held by the Lower House of the Convecation of Centerbury. But in denouncing the evil consequences of gambling Archdescon been expressly composed by Joseph Barnby for the marriage of the Princess Louise and the Farrar was bold enough to say that in itself the ractice could not be proved from Holy Writ to be a direct sin. Here he was at issue with many of his clerical brethren; although the Bishop of Colchester went so far as to defend the lotteries at bazaars held for pious purposes. "A number of people subscribed to draw lots" for things which were beyond their means to buy right out:" an ingenious apology for the lettery system : but it would land the Bishop of Colchester in logical consequences which he can hardly have contemplated.

Gambling in Church is a diversion that few would advocate or excuse, but, incredible as if may seem, a species of gambling is annually carried on at the parish church of St. Ives. It seems that some two centuries ago an eccentric person left in trust to the vicar and churchwardens an orchard, the rent of which was to be devoted to the purchase of Bibles. So far, so good. But the pious benefactor further Sovereigns provided that the Bibles should be raffled for with dies in the church, and this extraordinary ceremony was duly carried out on Whit Tuesday last. After a shortened form of evening prayer, the Vicar delivered an address, telling those present they must look upon what was to take place reverently. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service 2,539 Tons Register, Clark, Commander, this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been jects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance here given in extenso. Each and every word fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Pot the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English
